

Tom Mammen
EFGA

There are two things on earth that are eternal, the Word of God and the souls of people. Going to Jesus Loves Chinatown event last year for the first time really has helped me to focus on the things that matter and it has equipped me to make an eternal impact to advance the Kingdom of God. Through the excellent teaching on evangelism provided by Pastor Andrew Rapport, we learned how to share our faith, we learned how to handle objections and the people that make them, and we learned how to overcome communication barriers that make the presentation of the Gospel difficult through different methods such as using humor when talking to people. Some of the biggest reasons people do not share their faith today is because they don't know how, afraid of rejection, or they don't feel they have the burden to reach the lost. If this is you, I highly encourage you to come to Jesus loves Chinatown event this year where you will be able to learn how to give away your faith, overcome fear of rejection and be bold for Christ, and you also will be able to gain a greater motivation and desire to reach the lost. What I have learned at the event last year at the Jesus Loves Chinatown event has helped to share the gospel on a daily basis with people in my home, church, work, and community. This is not an event you would want to miss!